Hi Bob,

The DOI Office of the Solicitor and NPS have explained the legal requirements a number of times, such as at the workshops, at the early Committee meetings, and in numerous sidebar discussions and correspondence since then. The requirements you refer to are set out by statutes and established case law, and are more than just NPS policy.

I regret that you continue to disagree with those requirements. NPS has a responsibility to develop an ORV plan and regulation that is in accordance with the agency's legal mandates and policies, which we believe are clear. I believe that the most productive use of the remaining Committee work time will be to focus on developing an ORV management alternative and regulation that NPS can agree will comply with the legal requirements and therefore can approve.

Thank you for your continued interest!
