Tommy,

She does not know SHPO comment or view , we needed an independent outside view of the analysis. I didn't want Barbara to base her analysis on what NPS or SHPO comments.

I talked with Christine Arato yesterday, I agree that we need peer review. Barbara told me she is looking forward to comment, she is not a National Register or a TCP expert, she expects that with the comment it will change the view of the document. This is the 95% Draft, we will have another 100% Final Draft to review after our comments. Since I treating this as a independent study, she does know about SHPO comments or view on this.

Doug---

I think Mike is absolutely right about the peer review. Christine Arato, our senior historian who was at JFK birthplace during the Cape Cod hoo-ha, had these thoughts on the study:

"I read the CAHA TCP doc last night. Interesting. I think the definition of community needs further clarification (are only the families who trace their roots back 300 years included, or more recent transplants), and that the whole doc. would benefit more from the introduction of TAP perspectives (per Bulletin 38). I don't know about the different stakeholders and who is pursuing the suit, but I don't think that the report addressed the issue of multi-generational recreational users. Also, I think that the NR Criterion C applies, as well. Finally, I was a bit confused about the boundaries. All of the areas are natural areas within NPS boundary, but in the end I think the "eight villages" would need to be evaluated (especially if there are workshops, but also because of family/place names)."
